CEIAG School Commitment

The aim of our School Careers Education, Information, Advice and Guidance (CEAIG) programme is to develop the skills, attitudes and abilities of our students to enable them to make effective decisions about their future education, training and employment. Young people's careers are forged out of their experience, progress and achievements in learning and work. All our students have access to a planned programme of Careers Education which provides opportunities to develop and apply the knowledge, understanding and skills necessary to make realistic career decisions.

Seahaven Academy provides independent careers advice and guidance service which is staffed by an experienced and impartial fully qualified careers advisor.

Our careers and guidance adviser here at Seahaven Academy is Amanda Bosley. Amanda has many years of experience working with children and young adults in various settings advising them about careers education. Amanda has a Level 6 Diploma in Careers Guidance and Development; this is equivalent to a Degree.

She has knowledge of the local labour market and uses this to inform and guide her interviews. Amanda provides guidance around Further Education options, Apprenticeships and can support students who are looking to the future to study at Higher Education or alternatives to university.

Amanda works closely with subject departments to support with career opportunities that complement the curriculum and support the students to gain career experiences.

Amanda will be able to inform our students destinations, raise aspirations and provide personalised support and encouragement.
